

Troman acquires Mobilise AS – creating the leading provider of Election Administration Software in the Nordics

Marathon subsidiary Troman has acquired Norway's Mobilise AS. Mobilise is the leading provider of election administration software in Norway and the number-one platform for volunteer management in Norwegian civil society. Through the acquisition, Marathon and Troman now cover both the Swedish and Norwegian markets for dedicated election and volunteer management software.

Lars Stockinger, CEO of Mobilise AS, comments:

"We have built a strong platform for the people running elections and coordinating volunteers across Norway. Joining Troman and Marathon gives us the backing to take what we have built to more municipalities, more organisations, and further across the Nordics. Marathon's long-term perspective and experience in developing niche software are exactly what we need to continue this journey."

Robert Spethz, Troman, adds:

"We have been impressed by the depth of Mobilise's domain expertise and the strength of their market position from the start. Mobilise is the leader in Norway in a segment where Troman and Kaskelot already hold the leading position in Sweden. Together, we now cover the Nordic market for dedicated election administration software in a way no other provider does, and look forward to investing in its further development and growth."

The plan going forward is to continue developing and strengthening Mobilise's position as the leading Norwegian provider of software for election administration and volunteer management, while accelerating product development and expanding further across the Nordics.
